The following games will be present on gamescom now:

Bus Simulator 21

Starting September 7th, 2021, players can set up the local transport network of the fictional US city of Angel Shores in Bus Simulator 21. With 30 originally licensed buses by 10 well-known manufacturers, the newest part of the popular Bus Simulator series not only offers the largest fleet in its history, but also a whole range of new features such as extended bus company management, dynamic day-night cycles and a lively open world for everyone to explore. Bus Simulator 21 will be available for PC, PlayStation®4 and Xbox One and will also be playable on the latest generation of consoles. The game is developed by stillalive studios from Innsbruck/Austria.

Farming Simulator 22

Fans of Farming Simulator will also have to wait not much longer for their next adventures in virtual agriculture. The latest part of the popular simulation series by Swiss publisher GIANTS Software will be released on November 22, 2021 for PC, Mac, PlayStation®5, Xbox Series X | S, PlayStation® 4, and Xbox One. astragon Entertainment is once more responsible for the distribution in Germany. Among other things, new vehicles and machines, new maps set in Europe and the US, changing seasons, gameplay mechanics such as production chains and the three new crop types grapes, olives and sorghum are among the many highlights of the upcoming Farming Simulator 22.

Police Simulator: Patrol Officers

The Early Access title Police Simulator: Patrol Officers will receive its next content update during the digital fair. Police fans can look forward to brand new features such as a cooperative multiplayer mode, new tools and legal violations that will make the police officers' daily work even more authentic and varied. In addition, players can go on patrol in exciting night shifts for the very first time. The police simulation by developer Aesir Interactive from Munich/Germany has been available in Early Access on Steam since June 17, 2021.

Microids

The French publisher Microids will be presenting two top titles from their varied portfolio at gamescom 2021, which will find their way onto the retail market in German-speaking countries via astragon Entertainment: The action-packed family fun Asterix & Obelix: Slap Them All and Syberia: The World Before, the latest part of the iconic adventure series by Benoit Sokal.
